CEO's COMMENTARY

We are pleased to have negotiated another increase of Mortgage Company of Canada's line of credit. As we announced on August 8th, the line has been increased from $40 million to $50 million. I am proud to say that this is the fourth increase to our credit line since it was introduced in 2014. As you are probably aware, this capital has been instrumental in enabling our dramatic growth over the past four years.

This latest increase to the credit line is also significant because we are introducing Royal Bank of Canada as a lender for the first time. With RBC joining Toronto-Dominion Bank as a core lender, we are now supported by two of the largest financial institutions in Canada.

Increased regulations have forced traditional lenders out of the alternative mortgage market, while also resulting in an increase in both the quality of our borrowers and mortgages. We are proud to say that first mortgages now represent over 70% of our portfolio. We view the increased chartered bank support as a major endorsement of our business model. With both banks onboard, Mortgage Company of Canada is positioned to continue to execute its strategic plan.
